“SNUAC will grow into one of the top three hubs of Asian studies, connecting the world and sculpting the future.”

Message from the Director

The year 2019 was one for SNUAC to prepare for a new leap. SNUAC was established in 2009 with the vision of becoming a global hub of Asian studies through the production and sharing of knowledge based on the integration of regional and thematic research, aimed at emergence of a new future for Asia. As SNUAC has built its own building and secured the governmental budget for 'Infrastructure Construction of Asian Studies Research', it has positioned itself as an exclusive research center for Asian studies unrivaled by any other university institute. Based on these achievements, we focused on evaluating our activities over the last ten years and establishing new visions and development plans for the next decade of SNUAC.

The most outstanding achievement from SNUAC's development plan was having selected core research areas by collecting opinions from the members of the institute. We divided Asia into five regions and expanded the functions and capabilities of each respective regional research center (Nexus 1). These regional centers will lead the consilience of disciplines through active exchange with research and education institutes related to Asia within SNU, while taking on the responsibility as a hub of Asian regional research and policy development in Korea and abroad. In terms of research subjects and themes, SNUAC will 1) systematically research the mobility and exchange of people, goods and thoughts in Asia, in the rapidly changing domestic and foreign environments (Nexus 2), and 2) exert more endeavors to creating new values by collecting and processing various data from Asian countries and regions that will support the aforementioned research (Nexus 3). With the results of such efforts, we will strive to achieve the clear objective of becoming among the 'world top 3 hubs', rather than the less specific one as a 'global hub of Asian studies' that had been initially presented.

However, we have come to realize that we must first eliminate numerous obstacles in order to achieve our vision. We are in dire need of securing the finances to support highly capable and passionate researchers at home and abroad, so that they may freely pursue their research interests. Efforts must continue to tear down all psychological, organizational and administrative walls in each discipline or college that stand in the way of academic consilience. SNUAC will have to build a flexible research organization and produce results that will let everyone recognize the institute as an asset shared by all and the fruition of efforts by many. Such efforts will only be attained with the communication and participation of all who care for SNUAC.

I send my deepest gratitude to those who have continued to look upon SNUAC with great affection and have provided the institute with generous support for the past ten years. At a time where Asia's importance rises greatly both domestically and internationally, SNUAC will strive to renew itself as an institute where all researchers of Asian studies can cooperate in studying the current issues in Asia and seek out suggestions for Pan-Asiatic policy. We ask for your continued participation and support. Thank you.

Forming the Vision Committee for a leap toward a new decade

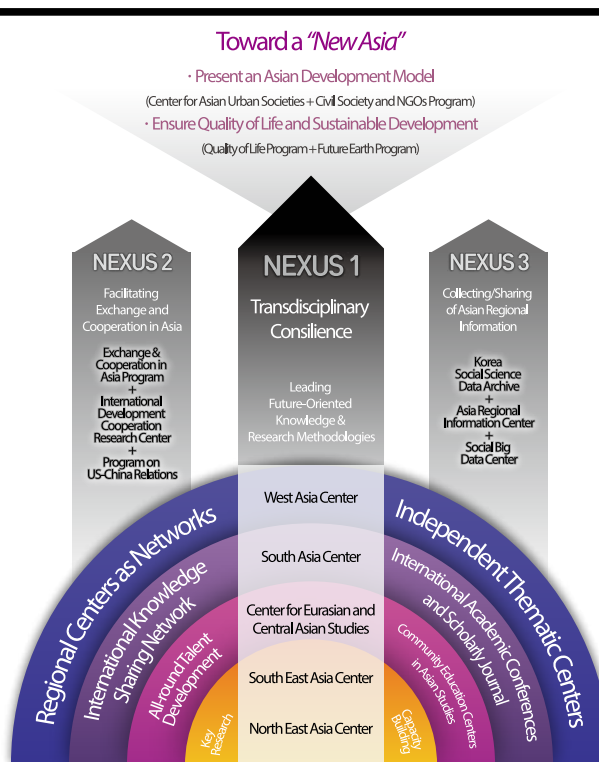

With the 10th anniversary, SNUAC formed the Vision Committee with faculty, practitioners and external experts to evaluate the institute's activities in the past decade and to develop the visions, objectives and strategies for another ten years to come. There were several workshops for reporting past activities, sharing presentations and discussing the issues, along with a survey on the SNUAC community to collect all opinions on the objectives, visions and strategies of the institute.

It was evaluated internally that SNUAC has successfully constructed the infrastructure (building, budget, organization, human resources, publications and administration) of the institute in the past decade. Current issues that were raised include orienting the direction of the institute, seeking an organic connection of its activities, pursuing cooperation on and off campus, international cooperation and networking, and securing full-time researchers.

As the core tasks to be improved, a need for 'pioneering, substantializing, localizing' strategy was identified. It was thus emphasized that the following are needed: selective concentration, long-term planning and investment, stronger international networking, organizational and spatial restructuring, and efficiency for research projects.

The activities of the Vision Committee became valuable touchstones for SNUAC to carry out its objectives as a "global hub for research in Asian studies by integrating regional and thematic research", explore issues in Korea and New Asia, and to establish its visions for contributing to sustainable development in Asia. Finishing up its activities, the Vision Committee invited public participation for a catch phrase with SNUAC's keywords of 'future, exchange and cooperation, sharing regional information', and selected "Connecting the World, Sculpting the Future."

The Global Hub for Research in Asian Studies by Integrating Regional and Thematic Research

Sharing research achievements of the last 10 years and new plans at the commemorative symposium for the 10th anniversary

SNUAC held a commemorative symposium for its 10th anniversary on September 26th, 2019. It was an event for the SNUAC community to celebrate the anniversary with scholars and experts from on and off campus who have been supportive of the institute and establish the vision in preparation of a new decade.

'A Commemorative Symposium for SNUAC's 10th Anniversary: Retrospect and Prospect' was an academic event for all regional centers and thematic research programs of SNUAC to present reports of major research activities in the past decade and plans for the future directions. The first session, on 'Consilience and exchange among disciplines – Future-emergent creation of knowledge and construction of a sharing network', consisted of presentation by Northeast Asia Center, Southeast Asia Center, Center for Eurasian and Central Asia Studies, West Asia Center, and South Asia Center. The second session included presentations by Korea Social Science Data Archive, Asia Regional Information Center and Social Big Data Center regarding 'The collection, management and proliferation of Asia regional information'. In the third session, Exchange and Cooperation Program, International Development Cooperation Research Center and Program on US-China Relations presented on the topic, 'Changes and future of Asia'. Lastly, the fourth session consisted of presentations by Center for Asian Urban Societies, Civil Society Program, Quality of Life Program and Future Earth Program on 'Presenting an Asian development model/Enhancing quality of life and sustainable development'.

After the symposium, a commemorative ceremony was held at Samick Hall. The ceremony began with Director SooJin Park's welcome speech, followed by congratulatory speeches by Dong Young Noh, Vice President for Research Affairs, and Bong Joo Lee, Dean of College of Social Sciences. Following the congratulatory speeches, a video was shown for all to follow the traces of SNUAC's ten years. In the reporting session by the Vision Committee, Yongho Kim, the committee chair, presented an evaluation of the center's past achievements and a prospect for its future, leading to Director Park's proclamation of SNUAC's visions. Achievement awards and outstand staff awards were presented to those who had contributed to the establishment and development of the institute. During the dinner after the ceremony, a video of congratulatory messages and celebratory performances were shown, followed by an address of thanks by a representative of the SNUAC Fellow Alumni. It was a meaningful event for the SNUAC community and guests to celebrate the 10th anniversary of SNUAC and promise for a leap toward a new future.

Holding international conferences for sharing and employing Asia regional information

SNUAC held ‘Managing, Sharing, and Employing of Regional Information in Asia’, an international academic conference jointly organized with Korea Association of International Development and Cooperation in commemoration of SNUAC’s 10th anniversary, at Youngone Hall on September 27th, 2019. The overall program included the keynote speech by MooJin Choo, president of the Korea Foundation for International Healthcare (KOFIH), and sessions on approaching Asia, managing and sharing of regional information in Asia, and employing of regional information.

Along with large-scale expansions in technological advancement and data production, the importance of data continues to grow in Asian studies as well. This academic conference was a meaningful event to invite major research institutions and experts in Asia and share cases of collecting, managing and sharing regional information of each region and of applying accumulated data to regional research.

In this conference to which seven countries (China, Japan, Thailand, India, Lebanon, USA, and Korea) and eleven institutions had participated, we were able to not only expand our mutual understanding of the various methods to collect, manage and share data in each region and country in Asia, but also discuss about the future of expanding the synergy of research in research institutions in Asia through sharing and combining data as well as strengthening the cooperation. SNUAC is pursuing the collecting, managing, sharing and proliferating of Asian regional information as one of the center’s core projects, and plans to hold international academic conferences related to sharing and employing Asian regional information regularly.

Strengthening domestic and overseas research networks with a series of international conferences commemorating the 10th anniversary

In commemoration of its 10th anniversary, SNUAC held a total of nine international conferences in a series, which its regional research centers and thematic research programs had jointly organized with institutes at home and abroad. This series was planned in part by Center for Asian Urban Societies, Northeast Asia Center, Southeast Asia Center, Civil Society Program, Future Earth Program and South Asia Program, with the Institute for Peace and Unification Studies, Institute for Humanities, Korea Research Institute for Human Settlements, Yanbian University, Korea Association of Political Sociology, Association for the Study of Political Society, East Asian Sociological Association and Chittagong Independent University. Each international conference dealt with one of various topics encompassing the politics, economy, society, culture, history, ecology and public health of the Asian region. On the matters related to East Asian cities, empires and ideologies, the Tumen River area, governance in Mekong, the role of civil society in East Asia, social-ecological health and developmental cooperation, eminent scholars and experts participated and contributed in a field of extensive discussion and sharing. SNUAC took this series of joint international conferences as an opportunity to verify its vision as a research hub of integrating regional and thematic research and to secure the basis for a sustainable research network by developing newly rising research topics and strengthening research cooperation.

Asia Basic Research Program

On November 7th, president Kihak Sung of Youngone Corporation gives a congratulatory speech at <Higher Education, Economic Development, and Garment Industry in Bangladesh and Korea>. With this workshop as a touchstone, SNUAC will continue cooperative and joint projects and construct the local infrastructure for research to expand South Asian studies.
