Message from the Director

“SNUAC will become a global hub for Asian regional studies through interdisciplinary research by experts in various fields”

In 2022, the COVID-19 pandemic winded down after changing human life for three years, and we saw everyone gradually returning to daily life. It was a meaningful time in the history of mankind to witness how a pandemic threatens humanity and how it evolves into a disease in daily life. Many lives were lost, and the socioeconomic damage following the loss was beyond what anyone had imagined. Our daily lives had become completely different in the meantime, and the global economic and social system had also gone through radical changes.

SNUAC held an academic seminar on February 18th, 2020, on the topic of ‘COVID-19, Social Shock and Prospects’ before the pandemic became a serious social threat.

Afterward, SNUAC continued to host various academic events and conduct research projects to actively participate in analyzing the social impacts of COVID-19 and suggesting countermeasures. The result of these endeavors remains as publications and presented materials, which will be useful as important resources in responding to possible future pandemics and other global threats. In overseas regional research, where visits and fieldwork were considered mandatory, a new paradigm of ‘knowledge sharing through untact conference and exchange’ emerged. As a result, we saw an unexpected increase in the academic activities of SNUAC during the pandemic. This was only possible with the experience, academic network, and high capabilities of researchers and staff that SNUAC has accumulated over the past decade. It was a proud year for us to have contributed to the process of adapting to the ‘New Normal’ without forgetting lessons from the past.

An important change in SNUAC was that the Korea Social Science Data Archive (KOSSDA), which had grown its capacity as an affiliated organization of SNUAC for the past eight years, was raised to the status of an independent institute by securing a new budget. Though SNUAC was sized down temporarily, we were proud to have assisted in the growth of new research areas and academic disciplines. On the other hand, we newly established the Center for Hallyu Studies and Asia-Africa Center and raised Asia Regional Information Center (ARIC) to the status of SNU’s legitimate institutes. Also, SNUAC performed the role of fostering regional experts through the Asia Humanities Dissemination Center to become a hub of Asian regional studies and sought to become a hub for regional information that collects, manages, and disseminates information on the Asian region through ARIC and Mega Asia portal. Moreover, SNUAC releases Asia Brief every week for fast response to Asian regional issues and regularly publishes the webzine Diverse+Asia as well as monographs with thematic comparative research on the Asian region. I believe these various efforts will bring us the opportunity for SNUAC to renew itself as a strategic think tank in Asia.

Since its establishment in 2009, SNUAC has positioned itself as a regional research institute representing Korea through the devoted efforts of Seoul National University and the participating researchers and staff. In 2022, a total of 130 man-days were delivered by our researchers and supporting personnel. Over 20 participating departments and researchers of various fields conducted joint research toward SNUAC’s aim of ‘becoming a global hub for Asian regional studies through transdisciplinary research’.

I send my deepest gratitude to those who have looked upon SNUAC with great affection and have provided us with generous support. We ask for your continued participation and support in the future. Thank you.

Director of SNUAC, Park, Soo Jin

SNUAC in 2022

From COVID-19 to the New Normal

SNUAC has provided quick responses to the challenges raised by the pandemic for the past three years. Along with analyzing the impact of COVID-19 to Asian regional societies and international politics from diverse angles and presenting the results, SNUAC actively participated in exchange and cooperation with overseas using online platforms based on the networks constructed with each region in Asia.

As social distancing restrictions were lifted and cross-border movement was allowed in the first half of 2022, SNUAC has been carrying out education projects and academic exchanges more actively than ever by combining online and offline platforms. Researchers, businesspeople, diplomats, and government officials from different regions in Asia are visiting SNUAC, and the researchers and next-generation scholars of SNUAC are also resuming their field research and international exchanges. These activities are strengthening the status of SNUAC as a ‘hub for Asian regional studies’.

Establishment of the Center for Hallyu Studies and Asia-Africa Center

Having operated regional research centers and thematic research programs and centers under the vision of ‘constructing a global hub of Asian studies based on the combination of regional and thematic research’, SNUAC newly established the Center for Hallyu Studies and Asia-Africa Center in 2022.

The Center for Hallyu Studies was founded as a response to the need to re-establish Hallyu studies that have been conducted sporadically and peripherally, as the importance of Hallyu in enhancing the national image and soft power is being emphasized. To accommodate such a need, the Center for Hallyu Studies seeks to conduct integrated research on the phenomenon of Hallyu and disseminate the result through publications, academic seminars, and education. Also, to build the stature of Hallyu studies, the center conducts collaborative research projects, develops interdisciplinary cooperation through research exchange, and strengthens partnerships with universities and research institutions at home and abroad. Within the first year since its establishment, the center has held eight book talks and one roundtable talk and has translated and published the book Soul in Seoul.

Asia-Africa Center was established as part of academic and practical efforts to understand the African region and Africa-Asia relations while the geopolitical importance and economic power of Africa are on the rise. By collecting various perspectives on Africa, taking an integrated transdisciplinary approach to the region, and building a bridge between Asia and Africa, the center strives to perform a central academic role in Korea’s African studies and become a global research institute devoted to Africa. Over the past year, the center has hosted over 20 academic events including the monthly SNU Africa Seminars, and has been building its stature as a hub for African studies.

Separation of KOSSDA

Since its establishment in 2006, Korea Social Science Data Archive (KOSSDA) has collected investigation material, statistic figures, interview and verbal resources, documentation, observation records and others produced by research institutes and individual researchers to construct digital databases and held workshops and academic events on using and analyzing data.

In July 2015, KOSSDA moved into SNUAC and occupied a portion of the second floor of the building to maximize the synergy by combining education and research functions and grow into an international data archive. For about eight years since then, KOSSDA, as an affiliated institution of SNUAC, has firmly taken the ground as a data hub of Asian studies by collecting data, holding methodology workshops, and hosting conferences of research using its data.

Then in April 2022, KOSSDA secured a separate budget and was raised to the status of an independent institution within the College of Social Studies at SNU. This results from the seven years of fostering its capabilities as part of SNUAC and serves as an exemplary case of SNUAC successfully operating as a hub and incubator of Asian studies.

Publication of HK+ Mega-Asia Research Project Book Series

SNUAC HK+ Mega-Asia Research Project Group began its project in May 2020 with the agenda of ‘Asias and Mega-Asia: Identities, Dynamics, Data-telling’. As the project group nears the end of the first phase in May 2023, it published a book series of eleven books that resulted from the research achievements of the past three years.

First of all, Introduction to Mega-Asia Studies: History, Perspective, and Method is an introduction to the series as it explores the meaning and potential of focusing on Asia as a mega-region in understanding the phenomenon of Asian regions closely connecting with each other through the dynamics of globalization and regionalism.

The Mega-Asia Research Cluster published three books: The Continent and Mega-Asia, which analyzes the past exchanges within the Asian continent to verify the possibilities of Mega-Asia based on the commonality of culture and economy; The Ocean and Mega-Asia, which explores the possibilities of Mega-Asia as a new community through the analysis of past exchange networks of people, civilizations, thoughts, and cultures on the Asian seas; and Driving Forces and Dynamics toward Mega-Asia, which analyzes the recognitions and strategies of major countries such as the U.S., China, Russia, Japan, and India toward Mega-Asia and examines the dynamics of Mega-Asia formation through value chains, Islamic finances, arctic logistics, Hallyu, and other aspects of inter-regionalism.

The Comparative Regional Studies Cluster published three books: Imagining Asia: Closed or Open, which analyzes the history of imagining a bigger community beyond in many regions of Asia; The Imagined Making of a Transitioned Asia as a Region in the 20th Century, which overviews the regional changes in the 20th century such as the colonization and post-colonization of Korea, India, Vietnam, and the Soviet Union, the emergence of petroleum, and changes of the Middle East, and examines the regional imaginations in the change from various perspectives; and Reconstructing Asia and Asian Identity in the Post-Cold War Era, which analyzes the operation of Asian identity and its current meanings through interesting case studies from different regions in Asia.

The Data Storytelling Cluster published four books: three in the series of The Geography of Asia: Nations and Cities, each on Northeast Asia, Southeast Asia & South Asia, and West Asia & Central Asia respectively, which neatly organize the natural environment, history, demographics, politics, economy, society, culture, science and others of nations and cities in Asia and systematically provide the various and vast regional information of Asia; and Reading Asia through Relations and Flows, which examines the current state of Asia through data and analyzes the exchanges, movements, and cooperation among Asias.

Master's Thesis and Doctoral Dissertation Awardee Forum

The SNUAC Dissertation Award selects outstanding theses and dissertations to foster next-generation scholars. SNUAC grants funding and publication of doctoral dissertations for the awardees. The award began in 2014 as one for doctoral dissertations only, and expanded into one for master's theses and doctoral dissertations in 2018, granting two awards each in both categories. Since 2020, president Sungkwan Hong of Sangam Energy Co. Ltd. has sponsored the prize money, and the donations have grown since 2021 so that a total of six awardees could be selected each year. The total number of awardees so far leads up to 31; twenty doctoral awardees and eleven master's awardees.

The topics of theses and dissertations selected span Chinese law, politics, and social policy, Japanese diplomacy, Cold War, peace, colonial rule, Southeast Asian social culture, social movement, and development assistance. The awardees have various majors in humanities and social sciences, including Korean literature, political science, sociology, women's studies, anthropology, geography, international studies, law, environmental studies, history, and performing arts studies.

In 2022, a forum was held twice for introducing the awardees' research achievements to the academic community for Asian studies and forming a network among the awardees and SNUAC researchers. In the first forum held in May 2022, four awardees presented their research, and in the second held in November, two awardees presented their work.
